Beat generation

No doubt, some future Glb-bon, casting around for material for his "Decline and Fall of Twentieth Century Civilisation," will stumble across the archives of this age, and spend many profitable hours unraveiling the causes which led to the extinction of this present era. But what will amaze him most is the paradox of this century. For just at the instant when twentigth century man at the threshold of harnessing the physical forces of nature, which could literally have caused the desert to blossom like the rose, he deliberately directed them upon himsel and became hip own execu-

Such a paradox will puzzle any future enquirer, and naturally, he will seek for causes, wil over-simplify, and possibly fall into minor errors, much as do historians of our own age, but by and large addressing himself to modern trends he will read the faded writing on the wall which we now ignore, even though it is emblexoned in glaring script. He will search through our social records to discover the manner in which we live, how we spent our lelaure and our working hours. Our literature and our entertainments wil práve of inestimable worth in unvoiling the mind of this

Anti-Communist leaders tonight announced CIUSICO, the "liberation" of this shattered capital — as fires were blazing all over the city and scattered fighting was still going on.

Prince Boun Oum, Prime Minister of the new provisional government, and General Phoumi Nosavan. Defence Minister and commander of anti-Communist "white band" troops, drove into the city, the administrative capital of Laos, at dusk to announce its liberation.

Only the highest craftamanship and skill can bring such extraordinary accuracy, even to the small movement of a lady's watch.

Sinco 1927 Rolex havo made 54% of all Officially Corlised Chronometers

During the 22 years from 1927 to 1958, Holext made 382,710 Swiss Officially Certified Chronometers. The rest of the entire watch industry produced $12,223. In other words, Rolex produced $4 per cent of all the Officially Certified Chronometers made during that time that is, socil over half the total Swiss production!

ABOVE: For 2,000 years religion has had a deep and profound effect on painters. And undoubtedly the greatest inspiration, has been—the Madonna and Child. Models for this picture, like the artists, have been many, but Welsh artist, Andrew Vicari, has picked on the addest of them all in chrosing a publican's wife. The child belongs to the caretaker of the London block of flats where he lives, while his Madonna is 42-yearold Ruth Howard-Ady, who, with her husband, runs a public house at Shepperton, Middlesex.

'OPERATION SANTA CLAUS' AND CHRISTMAS MUSIC

OPERATION SANTA CLAUS: Christmas comes but once a year and when it does it brings good cheer—to those of us whose cups and Christmas stockings alike will undoubtedly be overflowing with the good things of life a week from now.

From 9.15 until midnight on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, an assembly line of broadcasting personalities with a varied taste in music - Ted Thomas, Pamela Johnston, Bill Dorward, Irene Yuen, Mark Brolles, Patricia Penn, Michel Meredith and Audrey Pateman —will take over the microphone in teams of three and subject themselves (whatever their own preferences) to your choice of music. It could be your privilege for example, to persuade Ted Thomas to play you some on Elvis Presley.

Claus" "Operation Santa offers you a maximum of entertainment for a minimum--of effort; what you contribute towards it is up to you, but of this you can be sure-WHAT-EVER you pay, it will be money well spent, because every cent will find its way, via the Hongkong Council of Social Service, to a more cheerful Christmas for the poor children of Hongkong.

For "Operation Santa Claus" on Monday, Tuesday Wednesday nights, dial Radio Hongkong on 35066 and pledge up to the hilt, and send your donations to Madge Newcombe, 47 David House.

corded: A modern American Christmas tradition is the performance of the delightful opera "Amahi and the Night Visitors" by the Italian composer, Gian-Carlo Menotti. This can be heard in the Sunday 1.13 WEATHER REPORT. Concert at 9.45 pm Amahl is a poor shepherd boy, and because of the spirit in which he receives the first Christmas, a wonderful miracle happens to him. Although a contemporary work, "Amahl" is filled with beautiful melodies—of—the type which keep coming back. Another Christmas pratorio, this time a romantic one "L'Enfance.. du Christ".. by Berlioz will be broadcast on FM transmission on Friday night, at half-past eight. In some of the most melodious music ever written, "L'Enfance" tells the story of the Holy 3.30 SOAMES FORSYTE ESQUIRE Family's flight into Egypt.

CHRISTMAS MUSIC-live: A programme of Christmas music from the Roman Catholic repertoire can be heard on Friday evening at 9.45 pm, when the Choir of the Catholic Cathedral, Caine-road give a broadcast performance. Their conductor is Father Luigi Monti.

On Wednesday evening, at half-past-eight, in our weekly

"Operation Santa Claus" is recital "From the Concert Hall,"

INTER-SCHOOLS PROGRAMME

Saturday is the night for everyone to join Perry Como in his gay and entertaining hour show, and this week Perry has as his guests Keely Smith the singing star, Jack Paar, one of America's most interesting and unusual comedians who has one of the top rating comedy shows in the States to his credit, and Kokomo a most engaging animal entertainer.

The Four Just Men series follows at 9.45 and this week there with the addition of Richard Conte stars as lawyer comedy with half an hour of Jeff Ryder in a story of a young Mickey Rooney at 7.35. woman charged with poisoning her husband.

Sunday sees the start of what promises to be a most interesting programme. It is an inter-Schools Quiz called "What Do You Know" and presiding over this battle of wits will be Tom Cross, so don't forget to watch and see the young people of the Colony representing their schools on Sunday at 7.35.

Later in the evening Sunday Showtime brings to your screens that excellent English actor Trevor Howard in a fascinating "The Golden called ព្រៃកា Salamander" In which his costar is the beautiful French actress Anouk.

The Monday Documentary this week has a Christmas flavour as it shows you how Montreal goes about life in "The Days Before Christmas."

That delightful songstreet, Mona Fong leads Tuesday's Song Parade at 7.35, and at 10.05 on the same evening Agnes Moorhead stars in "The Protege," the story of an ageing actress who determines that her (daughter will become the star she herself has failed to be. So strong is her determination that when a young man looks like fetting in the way she resorts to murder.

THE HOUSE BANDA'S MEN

IN Nyasaland today you may see the gutted foundations of a newly burned house. A crucifix still hangs on a ruined wall. This was the home of Mr Chester Katsonga, an African who. opposes Dr Banda's Malawi Congress Party.

The house was burned down by a Malawi mob while Katsonga was away. His wife, his children and his 80-year-old father were allowed to escape only after pleading with their attackers for half an hour.

Strange behaviour, you may. think, for a party led by Dr devout member of the Church of Scotland.

COOKING TIPS:

In baking and roasting ulways place dull side of Foil up (that is, shiny side next to food). The shiny surface has a tendency to reflect the heat away from the food as a result cooking is slowed down.

If food is browning too quickly, lay a piece of foil shiny side up across the top of the pan. This will help to prevent the food from becoming too dark in appearance.

Quick Method:

Wrap bird completely in Alcan Foil and cook at 450°F—"18 minutes per pound for turkeys up to 12 pounds; 12 minutes per pound for turkeys over 12 pounds. During the last half hour of cooking remove the foil to brown.

England's chess team counted their annual match with Holland in Flushing by the narrowest possible margin of 91-101.

The top five boards held their own and the match was really decided on Boards 6 and 7. Ken Lloyd was well below his British championship form, and Stuart Milner-Barry, after having completely outplayed his opponent, missed several wins and finally had a knight trapped.

Easily the best English result was the two brilliant wins of Bkegness schoolmaster John Littlewood. His opponent Constant Orbaan had no answer to Littlewood's attacks and was defeated in a welter of sacrifices.

have found an answer to a problem which has never hitherto been solved: Why does a chicken seek the company of other chickens?

The answer is that it does not want to be alone, and only by being with other chickens can it be not alone. The question wan answered by isolating chickens, keeping them near other chickens, and recording on a machine their attempts to join their fellows. This experiment, made at the University of Maine, will probably go into the text books under the heading: Gallinaceal Behaviourism. In passing

THE word Terneuzen in a paper took me back many years. It was in that pleasant little Dutch town that, for some unearthly reason, I told an innkeeper that I was a Spanish commercial traveller. He beamed with delight and organised a parly. The inn filled up, everyone drank my health, but luckily nobody asked what I was seiling. I got away in the small hours of the morning and was accompanied to my hotel by a singing, cheering crowd. What it was all about I have never discovered. Orders promptly

The addict: the man compelled, the man for whom there is no longer any freedom of choice. George Miller is one; he must gamble as drug-takers must have their shot. He doesn't try to resist any more. IF you have visited the grey old fortress by the Thames that is the Tower of London it is possible that you walked over a fortune that has been missing for 300 years.

While you listened to the 'beefeater', the Yeoman Warder who was your guide, you may have been within easy digging distance of a hoard of money worth possibly a quarter of a million counds today.

The evidence that it was hidden in the Tower in 1662 was strong enough to cause Charles II to put Samuel Pepys, the diarist, in charge of a search party. In recent years it has caused the Ministry of Works to turn treasure hunters. But the money has never been found - so far as is known.

The money is said to have been hidden by John Barkstead who started his career as a goldsmith in the Strand and later became a colonel in the army and an M.P.

As an M.P. he became a friend of Oliver Cromwell and with Cromwell signed the warrant for the execution of King Charles I.

Three years later, in 1652, Cromwell, now installed as dictator of England, made Barkstead governor of the Tower of London with £2,000 a year pay - a very generous wage at that time.

From the prisoners Colonel Barkstead extracted money that made his pay seem small by comparison. It was normal practice in those days for the governors of jails to make money from their prisoners, but Barkstead did it to a scandalous extent.

Reward

His reward was to be knighted by Cromwell. He became Sir John. He was an important, wealthy man.

Then his world crashed. Cromwell died, and Charles II came to the throne. Barkstead fled. He got to Holland but royalists went after him, captured him and smuggled him back to England where he was swiftly tried, hanged, drawn and quartered for his part in executing Charles I.

That was in July 1660. The treasure hunt began three Samuel Pepys, secretary to the She said that she had heard navy, was called to see his cousin, the Earl of Sandwich, one of England's greatest sea-

Two days later they dug again for two or three hours. Again they found nothing. "We went away the second time like fools," wrote Pepys in his diary.

That night Pepys met Wade and a friend by appointment in the Dolphin tavern. They had now seen their informant who, Pepys discovered, was a woman. And now the hidden money was said to amount not to £7,000 but to £50,000. It would be worth many times that amount today.

A third dig was arranged and months later. It began when this time the woman came along.

Barkstead to have dug there. Eventually the search was abandoned, though Pepys still believed the woman's tip was a genuine one. "I have great confidence," he wrote, "that there is no cheat in these people and that they go upon good grounds."

Years passed

The years passed until recently 20th century potholers came into the story. They are members of the Speleological Society who are interested not only in caves We would like to know if but in all things underground.

With Ministry of Works permission Mr Charles Quarrell, one of their officials, went to the Tower with a diviner.

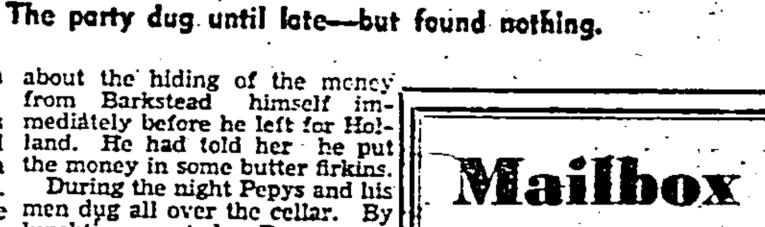

With the clue of the butter firkins in mind they went to a store room which was once part of the Tower's dairy. There the diviner claimed to detect the presence of objects beneath the cement floor only some five feet down.

"But the Ministry refused to let us dig." Mr Quarrell told me crossly. "They said that as they were going to do some excavations in that area in some other connection they would also look out for the treasure.

"Later they reported that they found nothing at the spot. But I still think it could be found near there. A really exhaustive search is needed."

The chief problem for treasure hunters is that the ground level inside the Tower has risen by many feet over the years. Buildings that collapsed were never cleared away. They were merely levelled and new buildings erected on top of them. So buried treasure might now be deep. .

HONGKONG'S lovely lady of song, Kong Ling, is in America at the time of writing, for the specific purpose of appearing on the Arthur Godfrey Show. A milestone in her career indeed.

Here in Hongkong her careeris about to be further enhanced by the release of her first album on the Diamond label.

As a prelude to the launching of this long player, the record company are releasing four singles from the album. They are "C'est Magnifique" and "My Heart Is An Open Book"-both sung in English; Voice Of (in English Mandarin) backed by "I Love You Baby" in English: "One Way Ticket To The Blues" (in English and Mandarin) and "Let' Go Off-Beat" in English; "Sayonara" (in finally English and Mandarin), and "Tenderly" (in English).

The album is entitled "Hongkong Presents Qff-Best Cha, Char and the 12 songs were cut in two days at two strenuous sessions at the Highball bar.

Miss Francis Silva, of the Diamand Music Company who produced the album, was also the recording engineer.

The album was recorded for stereophonic and monaurul reproduction. Having heard the tape, I sincerely believe they have a best-seller on their bands.

The more diligent will make use of this opportunity to brush their weak subjects. Shopkeepers will be making ready for the rush and penpushers will be enjoying several days off and extra wages.

While we are receiving all this, however, we should remember that the Christmas spirit is to give—especially to the needy -and not so much as to receive.

In a small place like Hongkong with such a huge population, the "needy" is indeed applied to a large group. A walk through a few of the thousand and one streets of the city will prove it. In this category are young and old, men, women and children

Our reward for this will come in the form of a smile on the face of the old woman at the corner, snuggling warmly in your old coat, and the laughter of the children playing with the old but—to them—precious toy. And we will be happy, for we will have acted in the true Christmas spirit, gaining happiness in the pleasure and satisfaction of having done something really worthwhile.

TTHE big news this 1 week is of course Kadio Hongkong's charity drive for the benefit of underprivileged children.

All proceeds will go to chlidren not fortunate enough to have homes and parents of their own, and the public are; invited to contribute to the drive by telephoning Radio Hongkong on Tel No. 35066, 35067, 35068 or 35069 and subscribing to their favourite disc.

When, the total on any one record has reached $100 the record will be played in full.

There's music to suit everyone from Bach to boogle, and all you need do is pick up the telephone, -dial any one of the above numbers and pledge a sum of money against any tune of your choice.

you don't like music then you can ask for a minute or two of your favourite Radio programme, anything from the Goon Show to The Archers, and when the total pledge reaches $200 then wa'll play it for you.

MOST scientists think that there is probably life on Mars—at least plant life. Whatever life there is must be very hardy to withstand the rugged conditions of that planet.

During the nearly 12-monthlong night at the poles of Mars it must get quite a bit colder than 60 degrees below zero. Naturally, during the 12-monthlong day the polar regions get a bit hotter than 80 degrees.

These changes cause the Mars snow cap gradually to melt until, by the end of summer, the entire polar cap has melted.

MOSS-LIKE --

As the polar cap melts, the water seeps southward causing areas of vegetation to come to life. This vegetation is probably lichen, a moss-like plant. As the polar cap begins to grow again in the Autumn lichens die.

Scientists think the vegetation on Mars is lichen because this is the only plant found on earth that could survive on dark vegetation areas of Mars astronomers think that these, ing together.

Dr E. C. Slipher, an astronomer who has taken many photographs of the planet Mars, thinks there may be life there. Some astronomers haven't seen the canals, and some who have, think they are an illusion caused by our mind's tendency to join things together to make a logical pattern. You can test this for yourself by putting a circle full of splotches and marks on a paper. Now have your friends, or even yourself, copy this picture as it looks at several distances.

When you get far enough away the splotches and marks will begin to form a pattern. Some scientists think this is what causes some people to see canals on Mars. In bewild'ment baa the strayed sheep at the

NO PICTURES

The fact that no pictures taken of Mars have ever shown canals seems to support this point of view. However, a camera takes a little longer to "see" something than our eyes

In the time a camera takes to make a photograph the currents in Earth's atmosphere have time to allow the image of Mars to move a little causing the picture to be blurred. So actually there may be canals on Mars which blur out in photographs but which the eye can get fleeting glimpses of.

P Besides seeing deserts, polar caps and vegetation areas on Mars, some astronomers have seen white clouds appear at certain places and hover there. Astronomers think these are caused by volcanoes.

Hexangular Tournament matches head the list of fixtures today, and they will both be hard fought games as they involve the four Service sides taking part in the Tournament. -

The Garrison-Brigade clash at Boundary-street could develop into a close tussle, if the Brigade can field all their stars. At least ten of the players in this game are in Colony "class" and a fine game should be seen. The Navy game against the RAF at Causeway Bay is another difficult game to forecast. The nirmen had a very fine victory over the Police side last Saturday and if they can reproduce that form they should win, although they will probably have to change their tactics.

Dragons versus the Warwick Regiment and Recrelo versus the Whitfield Wanderers complete the list for today. I should not be surprised to see the Recreio boys beat a weakened Whitfield side and I think Dragons will prove too strong for the " Midlanders."
